WHAT IS BLOCKCHAIN?

Blockchain is a shared, immutable ledger that facilitates the process of recording transactions and tracking assets in a business network.

Business runs on information. The faster the information is received and the more accurate it is, the better. Blockchain is ideal for distributing that information because it provides instant, shared, and viewable information that is stored on an immutable ledger that only permitted network members can access. A blockchain network can track orders, payments, accounts, production, and more. And because members share the same view of the truth, you can see all the details of a transaction from start to finish, giving you more confidence and new capabilities and opportunities.

WHAT IS CRYPTOCURRENCY?

Cryptocurrency is a digital payment system that does not rely on banks to verify transactions. It is a peer-to-peer system that can enable anyone, anywhere to send and receive payments. Rather than occurring in real-world exchanges where physical money is moved around, cryptocurrency payments exist only as digital entries in online databases specific to transactions. When you transfer cryptocurrency funds, the transaction is recorded on a public ledger. Cryptocurrencies are stored in digital wallets.

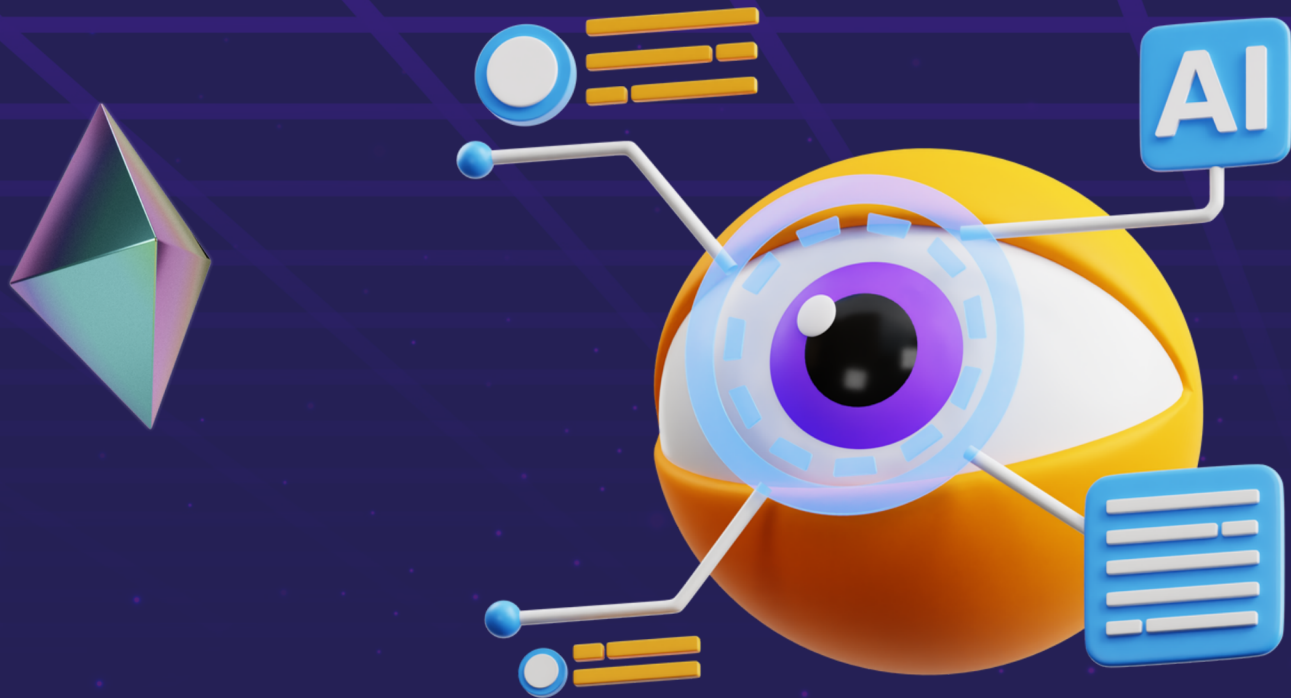

Cryptocurrency got its name because it uses encryption to verify transactions. This means the advanced coding that is involved in storing and transmitting cryptocurrency data between wallets and public ledgers. The purpose of encryption is to provide security and protection.

The first cryptocurrency was Bitcoin, which was founded in 2009 and is still the most famous today. Cryptocurrencies of great interest must be traded for profit, with speculators sometimes causing prices to skyrocket.
